Dublin death suit

SAN FRANCISCO — Attorney Melvin Belli has filed a $5.3 million negligence claim against Oak Knoll Naval Hospital for the families of a Pittsburgh woman and a Dublin man who died at the hospital.

Belli charged that the death of Louise Terry, a 37-year-old mother of five, and of 79-year-old Joaquin Miner were the fault of medical personnel at the Oakland hospital.

The famous San Francisco attorney Friday bluntly termed the hospital a chamber of horrors.

He is asking $5 million damage on behalf of Mrs. Terry's family; $300,000 for Miner's family.

Mrs. Terry's husband, James, told The Times Saturday that the family wants the claim carried through. He said his wife's death — allegedly at the hands of doctors at Oak Knoll — has left him a bitter man.

Oak Knoll a chamber of horrors: Belli

"I hurt like hell. That's how I feel," the 40-year-old retired U.S. Marine said. "It's going to be a long time before I stop hurting. That's all I can say."

Mrs. Terry died last week after complications during the removal of stitches. Miner died June 27. He was allegedly left unattended following gall bladder surgery.

The Terry and Miner deaths are among six being investigated by the Navy since Lt. David Crane, 28, an anesthesiologist, charged inadequate staff and insufficient equipment were affecting patient care at the Navy's hospital.

Hospital spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Richard Bennett said an eight-member Navy investigative team headed by Rear Adm. Stanley Anderson ended a visit to Oakland last Sunday. The team will complete the inquiry in Washington.

The Chief of Naval Operations ordered the inquiry after three congressmen called for an investigation.

A $300,000 claim was filed earlier by the family of Clifford Christian, of Oakland, who died June 26. Doctors reportedly inserted a needle into his chest cavity to draw fluids for a test. The needle tip allegedly broke and caused his lung to collapse and hemorrhage.

Navy defends patient care in death probe

OAKLAND — Navy officials insisted this week that staff and equipment shortages at the Navy Regional Medical Center here had nothing to do with recent patient deaths.

The Navy was responding to recent charges that six deaths, including 37-year-old Louise Terry of Pittsburgh and 87-year-old Joaquin Miner of Dublin, occurred under unusual circumstances.

"There are times, just as in most other hospitals, when we are understaffed, especially during the summer months," said Lt. Cmdr. Richard Bennett, a Navy public information officer, this week.

"People are transferred and leave the service in summer, they go on vacations and on leaves of absence," Bennett added.

"We have been in need of equipment and in fact have requested and programmed purchases of additional equipment — primarily monitoring equipment such as respirators and electrocardiogram machines."

"But the staff shortage and non-availability of equipment has not been a pervasive problem to this hospital and has not had any effect on patient care," Bennett insisted.

The controversy at the hospital erupted last month when Dr. David Crane, a 28-year-old anesthesiology resident, said in news interviews and letters to congressmen that three patients' deaths were attributed to inadequate staff and insufficient equipment.

Since then an investigation by the Navy inspector general, Rear Adm. Stanley Anderson, is reported to be covering three other deaths, including the 1974 Miner death.

Meanwhile, Bennett reported the hospital has received allocations totaling $170,500 to purchase previously requested equipment. Some has been ordered and the balance is already in the hospital, Bennett reported.

Also, the anesthesiology staff has been increased from seven to eight persons, Bennett said.

"I have been ordered to remain silent until the investigation is complete and the report is made," Crane said last week.

Earlier, Crane said his actions have resulted in a lost chance for promotion, a loss in the praise and respect of his superiors and some lost friends.

Asked of his present prospects, Crane said, "I can't leave the Navy. I have a four-year commitment."

Asked whether he considered his action worth the personal problems,

Crane said, "I would rather wait and see the results of the investigation before saying whether it was worth it in the long run."

Bennett said the eight-member investigating team headed by Anderson will complete their inquiry in Washington.

Their trip to Oakland ended last weekend and Bennett said there is no indication of a deadline when the report will be submitted to the chief of naval operations, who ordered the probe.

Crane wrote the Navy surgeon general, Reps. Fortney H. "Pete" Stark and Ronald Dellums, both Oakland Democrats, reporting shortages contributed to patient deaths.

Lone Star gets batch plant okay

HAYWARD — Lone Star Industries, one of the Valley's "big four" quarry operations, yesterday won Alameda County approval to build an asphalt batch plant on lands between Pleasanton and Livermore.

The 5-1 planning commission decision came after Livermore officials retracted their objections, and Pleasanton voiced theirs.

The two cities had said earlier that they would protest the plant, but for different reasons.

Under the state's new Surface Mining Ordinance, the planning commission's decision is final unless appealed to county supervisors. Pleasanton Planning Director Bob Harris, who voiced the city's objections, said he does not know if the council will make the appeal.

Livermore had protested the plant on grounds there was insufficient evidence to file a negative Environmental Impact Report. The city feared increased air pollution.

But since the "initial review" by city council, "information has been provided to the city by (county planning staff) . . . which adequately responds to the major concerns held by our city," according to a letter from city manager Bill Parness.

Pleasanton's objections are centered on increased traffic on First Street as trucks rumble their way to market.

But county planning department officials say the Valley's third asphalt batch plant will add only three to five extra trucks per day to downtown traffic.

Plants at Kaiser and Rhodes & Jamieson property use the private El Charro road to head for market.

But Pleasanton City Council's resolution opposing the permit is based on "any change" that puts even one more truck on the city streets.

BART Cops restrained from strike

OAKLAND — There will be no Bay Area Rapid Transit District strike today. But, a spokesman for BART's 70 police officers declared the threat of a strike is far from over.

All AC Transit District BART-commuter buses are scheduled to operate this morning. Trains will operate on normal schedules, a BART spokesman said.

BART police had planned to walk off the job at one minute after midnight this morning and the bulk of BART's more than 1,700 employees planned to respect the picket lines.

However, BART lawyers got a court order shortly after 5 Monday afternoon preventing BART police from striking.

Three hours later, BART Police Officers Association, Local 1008, decided to comply.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Harold Hove has scheduled a 2 p.m. hearing on a permanent injunction today. Both BART and police plan to be there.

The major issue separating police and BART management is a strike clause. BART officials say that police officers do not have a legal right to strike.

Policemen disagree. Association vice president Jack Strand pointed out in an interview that BART wants to take away police officers' right to honor picket lines. "But," Strand said, "without that power we're not a union any more."

Association president Eugene Jennings adds police are also mad because BART negotiators withdrew a retroactive pay clause from the district contract offer shortly after police unionized.

Safeway settling

A tentative settlement has reached in the strike by dairy delivery drivers against Safeway Stores, federal mediator Jerry Finley reported today.

Details were withheld pending a ratification vote by the union, Finley said.

Finley said the proposed three-year contract was finalized Saturday in Salinas following lengthy mediation sessions.

Originally pickets hampered the operation of two major Safeway distribution centers, but after Finley got both sides together last week the strike was limited to dairy products centers, Finley said.

Back to the budget

Hundreds have made their voices heard at public hearings before the county board of supervisors. Thousands more have expressed their feelings through the mails.

Contra Costa County's upcoming budget is creating more interest and furor than ever before, as taxpayer groups clamor for cutbacks, and interest groups fight to save pet programs.

The county board must adopt a new budget soon. Supervisors will grapple with the project again at their meeting today.

Prison terms for two in coffee hijacking

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two men drew federal prison terms Monday for their part in the theft of 500 cases — 12,000 pounds — which was being offered for sale at bargain prices over citizens' band radio.

The coffee, destined for Denver, Colo., was worth an estimated $36,000. It was stolen Feb. 18 from a trailer parked at a Hayward trucking terminal. The empty trailer was found the following day at nearby Pleasanton.

Clifford Ortiz, 39, Hayward, a tire worker who pled guilty to one count of theft from an interstate shipment, was sentenced to three years by U.S. District Court Judge George B. Harris.

The sentence is to run concurrently with a three-year state sentence which Ortiz is now serving at Folsom prison on an April 11 conviction in Napa County for sale of a controlled substance.

Nickolas Rizzo, 51, Castro Valley, a dock foreman for Illinois-California Express Co., was sentenced to two years in federal prison on his plea of guilty to theft from an interstate shipment.

Daniel Fernandez Basque, 38, Dublin, also an employee of the hauling company, had his sentencing continued for three weeks. He pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor counts of theft of coffee valued at under $100. The delay was to resolve conflicting statements which Basque made to the probation officer.

Frank Plada, 59, Newark truck mechanic, pleaded guilty earlier and was sentenced last week to one-year probation and a $1,000 fine. He also was ordered to make restitution of $912.80 for stolen coffee. The judge said Plada was less culpable than the others.

At the time of the arrests, FBI agents said the coffee was being offered for sale over citizens' band radio. One affidavit said Ortiz admitted buying coffee for $30 a case and selling it for $40 to a woman who then resold it.

Flying in Amelia's shadow

Julia Dryer of Alamo learned to fly airplanes five years ago. She says it is one of the thrills of a lifetime when leaving earth and heading skyward.

"You feel so free," she said.

In order to share her experiences with other women pilots, Dryer joined Ninety-Nines, Incorporated four years ago. This international group of women pilots was founded by Amelia Earhart in Long Island, New York on Nov. 2, 1929. Dryer said the title came about since there were 99 women present when the group was founded. Now there are 5000 members.

Dryer advises young women interested in flying to begin as soon as possible.

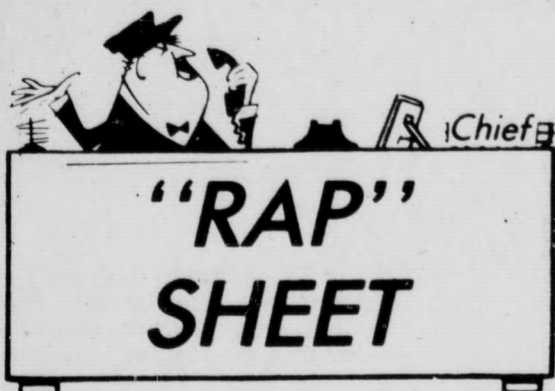

She said it often takes a long time to acquire various ratings such as instrument, commercial, jet, etc.

"The earlier you start, the better."

Man falls party-goer with brick to head

PLEASANTON — A Pleasanton man was allegedly struck in the back of the head with a brick by a man angered over the victim's erratic driving, police reported. According to reports, the victim left a Flagstone Drive party about 3:50 a.m. Friday and discovered that burglars had stolen stereo speakers from his car.

Police said the victim began driving about the area erratically. A man attending the party, who reportedly knew the victim, became angered at the victim and confronted him at Flagstone and Muirwood. The victim was allegedly struck on the back of the head with a brick swung by other man, police said.

The injured man fell to the ground, grasping the back of his head. Witnesses separated the two men and called police.

The victim was treated at Valley Memorial Hospital for a cut at the base of his skull.

A complaint has not been issued and no arrests were made. The case is being investigated.

Suspected burglar arrested on Main Street

PLEASANTON — Police officers watched a Pleasanton man allegedly switch the tires from a parked vehicle to his own car Saturday morning, then arrested the man on suspicion of attempted auto parts theft.

Officer Robert Shaw was patrolling Main Street about 7:45 a.m. when he spotted a car without any tires parked in the Bank of America parking lot. Shaw drove past the scene and saw a man changing tires on his car.

Cover units arrived, and as the suspect rolled a tire from the stricken vehicle to his own car, officers moved in and arrested the man.

Two tires and an 8-track tapp player with its serial number filed away were found in the trunk of the suspect's vehicle. Booked on suspicion of auto parts theft, receiving stolen property and possessing an article with its serial number removed was David Hugh Silvestri, 22, of 272 Rose Ave.

Fleeing suspect arrested by police

LIVERMORE — A suspect who ignored police orders to halt was wrestled into submission atop barbed wire near Second and Maple streets early Saturday.

Police attempted to pull the driver over on Maple Street about 1 a.m. The suspect drove into a local parking lot and ran from the car with officers in pursuit.

Officer Scott Robertson followed the suspect through a broken fence and the two fell to the ground atop bundles of barbed wire. Robertson and Reserve Officer Jim Perry subdued the suspect.

Mark Vernon Simmons, 32, of 126 Martin Ave. in Livermore, was taken to Valley Memorial Hospital and received 11 stitches for a chest wound as a result of the fight. He was then booked on suspicion of resisting arrest and his alleged failure to pay $2,610 in outstanding traffic warrants.

Bartender arrested trying to quell fight

PLEASANTON — A local bartender was arrested for allegedly brandishing a gun Saturday morning while attempting to stop a fight between two bar patrons, police reported.

Police said the suspect brandished a gun which was reported stolen. Gary Ernest Whately, 41, of 4646 Ithica Way in Pleasanton was booked on suspicion of exhibiting a deadly weapon, carrying a loaded firearm in a public place, and receiving stolen property.

Diamond ring taken from home

LIVERMORE — A $750 diamond ring was taken from Judy Rae Volponi's Bridgeport Circle home recently, police reported.

A 1/2-carat diamond in a yellow gold setting was reported missing. No signs of forced entry were found. There are no suspects.

Jewelry, coins stolen from residence

PLEASANTON — An unlocked patio door allowed burglars to enter a Valley Trails Drive home Saturday and take an assortment of jewelry and some old pennies, police reported.

Sherry Lou Moniz said burglars also ransacked her home. Police lifted numerous fingerprints from a porcelain piggy bank in the residence. An investigation is continuing.

CB radio lifted from van in driveway

LIVERMORE — A $250 citizens band radio was heisted from a van parked in a Findlay Way driveway last week, police reported.

Perry Georgiann said the radio was taken from her unlocked van. There are no suspects.

Staff shortage didn't cause deaths

He later wrote Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., who asked for hospital records on the deaths.

Besides Terry and Miner, four other deaths being probed are:

— Clifford Christian, who died June 26 when a needle inserted into his chest to draw off fluids reportedly broke, causing internal bleeding and a lung collapse.

— Gene Raymond, 49, of Modesto who died July 30 of cardiac arrest and brain damage suffered while undergoing routine surgery to remove a cyst from his hand.

— Hattie Mae Roberts, 48, who died Nov. 8 when an artery in her throat was severed accidentally by a surgeon during a tracheotomy.

— Sherisse Bennett, 9, who died of cardiac arrest May 23, 1974, after doctors allegedly failed to dilute an anesthetic before surgery. Rep. Downey, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, has charged the military has a "critical shortage of doctors," particularly in the summer months.

"Just last month, the Navy was short 200 doctors, the Army was down 370, and the Air Force short 389 doctors," Downey said last week.

He speculated that the shortage was due to doctors leaving military service for private practices.

"The mean national doctor's income — according to the AMA (American Medical Society)," Downey said, "is $48,500, while a doctor's income after nine years of service in the Navy is $36,000."

Downey is working on legislation which would revise the military recruiting, training and benefit practices for military doctors.

Leader pleased on overpass date

PLEASANTON — The leader of the charge to build a freeway overcrossing and bridge the dead-ends of West Las Positas Boulevard says he's "extremely pleased" by the state transportation department's approval of the project.

Don Savery ended about three years of work Friday when CalTrans officials said the $1.5 million auto-pedestrian overcrossing had cleared the state's hurdles.

A combination of federal, state and local monies will build the once controversial bridge by 1981, linking the Foothill area with the city's core.

Savery began fighting for the project when his children started Foothill High School.

Kids either took a bus on the long route through Pleasanton and across the freeway, or, more commonly, used drain pipes under the freeway, or raced traffic straight across I-680.

He started with a petition and work on city council, then took his plea, complete with kids darting across the freeway, to the state.

"I'm extremely pleased," he said. "But I would like to have seen it sooner. I'm glad to see the joint effort of all our work."

Construction should be finished by 1981.

Opposition from homeowners whose houses would bear the brunt of increased traffic were vociferous when the issue first surfaced. But none were found yesterday.

"Those people should have realized that when they bought their houses," said Savery. "When I first moved here I wondered why West Las Positas just came to deadends on both sides of the freeway."

BART strike averted

BART general manager Frank Herringer counters that the police union has rejected a district offer to bring in state mediators to try to avert a strike.

Police wouldn't say if they'll strike Wednesday. It's a decision which hasn't been made, an officer said. But the dispute is far from settled.

Both AC Transit district and Greyhound Commuter Lines say they'll maintain normal service in the event of a strike. AC Transit operates commuter service to BART stations from Danville, Dublin, Pleasanton, Livermore, Martinez, Pittsburg, Antioch and Pinole.

Greyhound runs commute hour buses from Walnut Creek, Lafayette, Orinda, Pleasant Hill and Concord. Buses go directly to the transBay terminal in San Francisco.

Flying in select company

ALAMO — Keeping your head in the clouds is a beautiful experience, according to Julia Dryer of Alamo who learned to fly airplanes five years ago.

She has earned her commercial pilot's rating and plans to get her instrument rating soon, she said.

The plane she flies most is a single-engine Grumman American rented from Aero Training Incorporated at Buchanan Field Airport in Concord.

"Once you leave the ground you feel free and away from everything," Dryer reported. "You concentrate on flying the plane."

In order to share experiences with other women pilots and keep up to date on aeronautical information, Dryer joined Ninety-Nines, Incorporated (99's) four years ago.

99's consists of an international group of women pilots. It was founded in Long Island, New York on Nov. 2, 1929 by Amelia Earhart. She was the first woman pilot to fly over the Atlantic Ocean. Later, she was lost at sea.

The name "99" came about since that was the number of women pilots present when the group was founded.

"There are 5000 members now, Dryer said. "Husbands of members are called forty-nine-and-a-half."

Dryer belongs to Mt. Diablo Chapter, Southwest Section of 99's. There are 608 chapters in the Bay area.

The 99's engage in and promote educational and scientific activities related to aeronautics. They also support intercollegiate activities, offer an Amelia Earhart scholarship, provide teaching aids to instructors giving airport tours.

The international group consists of women from all walks of life, age 16 and up, who are dedicated to flying, Dryer explained.

"Since it takes time to acquire the number of hours needed for various ratings, I advise girls to go into flying as soon as possible," Dryer advised. "There are all sorts of aviation job opportunities opening up for women — traffic controllers, commercial jetliner pilots, ground school teachers and so on."

Last week, Dryer attended the 48th International Convention of Ninety-Nines, Incorporated. It was held at the Hyatt Regency in San Francisco. Next year's meeting is slated for Sydney, Australia.

Besides fellowship, fun and updating by-laws, women pilots had a chance to listen to aviation-minded speakers note from around the world.

Dryer was convention Chairman of Decorations. She also won a third place trophy in the convention tournament.

The next event she is looking forward to is the Pacific Air Race (PAR) on Oct. 15. Dryer will be co-chairman.

"This year it originates at Santee, California near San Diego, goes through Palmdale, Paso Robles, Antioch and terminates at Buchanan field in Concord. The flyby will be at Antioch."

Besides flying airplanes, Dryer owns Hank and Frank Bicycle Stores in Oakland and Lafayette.

How to get help for drug abuse

MARTINEZ — A "Substance Abuse Resources Directory" is now available to Contra Costa County residents whose friends or family members are having trouble with alcohol or drug abuse.

The free-of-charge copies will soon be on hand at all county libraries, senior citizens centers and county supervisors' district offices, according to Jack Newton. He is chairman of the Contra Costa County Drug Abuse Board.

The pocket-size booklet lists sources in Contra Costa and nearby counties which offer hot-lines, information and referral, counseling, emergency services, detoxification, residential and non-residential treatment, drop-in centers and educational programs.

County organizations may arrange to pick up quantities of the guide by contacting the office of the executive assistant to the board, 2500 Alhambra Ave., L-1, in Martinez, or by calling 372-4221.

"Addiction can be avoided," stressed Newton. "A high quality of life can be achieved with motivation and information and the right kind of help. We hope this booklet can provide some of that help."

If you think things sometimes go wrong for you, you'll feel better after laughing at "The Born Loser" each morning in The Times comics.

Livermore sets tax rate, labor pact

LIVERMORE — The city council last night approved a tax rate one cent less than last year's amount, to $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation.

Before the new tax rate was approved, Finance Director George Nolan told council members that the city's net assessed valuation rose 20.4 per cent, from $138.4 million to $156.4 million. The tax base rose 17.9 per cent to $177.9 million.

Council members postponed consideration of a request to allow William Dougherty, one of three partners operating the fixed base operation at Livermore Municipal Airport, to buy out his two partners.

Dougherty's lawyer, Jan Schuyler, said "personality conflicts" between the partners prompted the proposed dissolution.

Councilman John Staley asked that approval be withheld until Dougherty's "financial stability" could be proven to his satisfaction.

Schuyler said Dougherty had given a statement of his financial responsibility to City Manager Bill Parness, who is on vacation. Staley said he would probably be satisfied seeing that document.

A lease transfer to Dougherty would release the other two partners of any financial responsibility, Staley said, which caused him to hesitate on approving the agreement.

The matter was continued to Tuesday, Sept. 6, the council's next scheduled meeting. The Aug. 29 meeting was cancelled due to the relatively light agenda scheduled, and the next Monday, Sept. 5, is Labor Day.

Mayor Helen Tirsell last night announced that the city had reached agreement with the Municipal Employees' Agency for negotiations on a new salary and benefit package.

Chiropractic Health Hints

BY DR. RAYMOND SERAFIN, D.C.
A NATURAL HEALTH FAMILY PRACTICE

IF YOU DO NOT ENJOY GOOD HEALTH

CONSULT YOUR CHIROPRACTOR FIRST

WHY SUFFER NEEDLESSLY WITH HAY FEVER?

Hay fever is an acute inflammation or excessive heat of the mucous membranes lining the nasal passages. In the pronounced stage this condition usually begins with sneezing, the same as with an ordinary cold. The eyes become easily irritated and tears flow easily and continuously. The eyeballs become inflamed and the tissues around the eyes become congested and reddened. There is an almost continuous watery nasal discharge.

The upper portions of the respiratory tract are so swollen from that inflammation that breathing is very difficult, and the victim often resorts to mouth breathing. Due to the irritation of the extremely sensitive mucous membranes lining the nasal passages, with the consequent sneezing and difficult breathing, sleep is very difficult.

It is generally felt that this condition is incurable. Since the "cause" is commonly supposed to be irritation of the membranes by the pollen of some flower or weed, the accepted treatment is to send the patient to a different climate or have him change jobs. However, since the great majority of these sufferers cannot afford such a casual approach to their means of making a living, they remain at home and often times suffer untold discomforts from their disease.

From the chiropractic standpoint the prognosis is very favorable, and recovery is nearly always the rule. The chiropractor seeks to so adjust the misaligned vertebrae so that all pressure is removed from the spinal nerves, thus permitting the free and uninterrupted flow of the impulse from the brain to the mucous membranes lining the upper passages of the respiratory tract.

The length of time required for the restoration of this abnormal condition to one of normal health varies with different individuals. In those cases which are of a comparative short period of existence the condition is sometimes relieved very quickly. If the disease is of long standing then it may be a matter of weeks or months before complete relief can be obtained.

Any patient suffering with hayfever or similar allergies should consult his chiropractor for relief. For more information on HAY FEVER call Dr. R. Serafin DC at 846-4732 or write 60 Mission Dr., Pleasanton.

Feingold diet

New hope for hyperactive kids

Does your little boy throw himself in front of moving cars? Does he put the garbage can over his head and crash it against the garage wall? Does his super-charged behavior disrupt his classroom? And does he drive parents, brothers and sisters, playmates and teachers up the wall with his aggressive, impulsive acts? Maybe it's something he ate.

and flavors, and foods containing natural salicylates, they were able to take the child off drugs, sometimes for the first time in years, and found his behavior to be normal, and in many cases found him to be a delightful child. (Most hyperkinetic children are boys.)

The Feingold Association of Contra Costa, composed of parents in this area who have hy-

Can children's behavior be controlled by a diet that bans junk foods and artificial additives?

This is no joke to an increasing number of parents across the country who have experienced the nightmarish patterns of hyperactivity in their children, and who contend that this aberrant behavior can be controlled to a large extent by the elimination diet suggested by Ben Feingold, M.D.

Many desperate parents have resorted to medically authorized drugging of their otherwise uncontrollable children, yet have worried about the zombie-like behavior that sometimes results, and about the long-term side-effects.

Parents with children on drugs such as Ritalin, Stelazine and Dexedrine, have tried the diet set forth in Dr. Feingold's book "Why Your Child Is Hyperactive" and a remarkable improvement in children who had terrorized those around them without the drugs.

On the diet, which eliminates artificial colors peractive children, some with the attendant lack of coordination, some with learning problems, some with medical and emotional problems, will have an organizational meeting September 7, 7:30 p.m., at the Doctors' Dining Room, Kaiser Hospital, Newell and S. Main, Walnut Creek. (building in back of parking lot.)

One of those responsible for the formation of the group is Sharon Davidson of Livermore. As the mother of a formerly hyperactive boy, she testifies to the good results of the Feingold elimination diet.

"At first I didn't believe Billy was hyperactive. He had no coordination problems and no trouble learning. He simply could not sit still even during his favorite television program."

"He was in kindergarten at the time, and one day his teacher handed me Dr. Feingold's book," she says.

After reading the Bill Davidson and sister Sheri of Livermore demonstrate the temptations of foods forbidden to them on the Feingold diet. Certain fruits and prepared cereals with chemical additives are banned in the diet, because some physicians and parents contend that they cause hyperactive behavior in children. The Feingold group forming in this area will inform about the diet and supply moral support for parents of hyperkinetic kids.

book, Sharon decided to give the diet a try. "I did everything cold turkey. I went into my kitchen and gave away everything that anyone would want, and threw away other things, mostly box goods, that contained artificial colors, flavors, preservatives. I try to avoid most chemical additives."

Sharon was elated at the results of the diet. "Since he's been on this diet he plays records in his room for hours or he reads." This was unheard of previous to the diet, says Sharon. "He draws for hours, and creates artistic type things," add the proud mother. "It's just great! I have to check on him now," she says with a smile, "because it's so quiet in his room. But still he has his active outside activities, riding his skateboard, his bike and playing soccer," she says. "His activities are balanced."

"Before we went on the diet he was outside all the time. I couldn't control him," Sharon reveals. "I tried to keep him in the back yard to play, and he'd tear up the flowers."

Another problem for parents of hyperactive children who react to artificial additives is in finding a doctor who is cognizant of the problem and does not prescribe medicines containing the offending colors and flavors.

"Find a doctor who will cooperate," advises Sharon. "There are some, but you have to search them out. It's a lot of work for a doctor to find medications without artificial coloring or flavoring."

Dr. Feingold suggests in his book that the whole family go on the elimination diet. In the case of the Davidson household, Sharon says this has resulted in better health for the whole family.

"Since being on the diet, and taking vitamin supplements, I feel great. I was continually sick with migraines," says Sharon, "and now I'm not. My husband feels better. He backs me on the diet. He says he has more energy."

The Feingold group is essentially a support group for parents who are experiencing common problems with hyperkinetic children. There is a parental stress committee, someone to call when problems become too great. There are monthly evening meetings and a monthly workshop. The larger parent organization meets three times a year.

They exchange information, exchange recipes and ideas, and generally try to help one another.

Sharon said the group is interested in getting lunches in the schools that kids on the elimination diet can eat. They also have picnics where all the kids can go and eat the same things as everyone else. Another desire of the group is to write to congressmen about the labelling practices of food manufacturers, and about food additives.

Everyone interested in finding out more about the diet may call Sharon Davidson at 443-3337, or may write to the Feingold Association of the Bay Area, 1724 Lexington, San Mateo, Calif. 94402, or call them at 415-573-8347.

ON THIN ICE AT THE ICE FOLLIES

We were delivered almost to the door of the San Francisco Civic Auditorium by BART. We took our seats. Blue lights around the edge of the ice rink came on, reflecting on the ice. Different colors of light played across the white swagged curtains. The music swelled. The lights dimmed. The Ice Follies were about to begin.

Ghostly figures floated silently across the smooth ice. The lights came on and we were dazzled by the of all those girls in rhinestones, sequins and black velvet gliding around the ice in their ostrich feather head-dresses, looking sensational doing a precision routine.

It was about this time, watching the effortless skating that I started to remember my own experiences on ice.

What I remembered most vividly was the fact that my legs wouldn't stay up straight. For some reason the only way I could skate was with my ankles turned over at right angles to the ice.

And since my legs seemed to be rather stiff as well, it was hard to steer a course around the rink. All these wonderful, dream-like figures kept passing me again and again in perfect time with the organ music. But there I was clunking along on stiff legs and bent ankles and once in awhile landing on the cold cold ice.

No one else seemed to be turning blue. But then I was brought back to reality, as the "fastest man in the world" was announced. He was a real person, Larry Seale, and he raced around the rink a few times. Yes, that seemed about the same speed as those other skaters in the ice rink of my childhood.

Then an ice clown, Little Lito, raced around, but seemed like he was constantly going to fall down. Oh, yes, how I knew that unbalanced feeling.

The music changed and reflected the mood of each number. Love music accented the romantic couples who danced in breathtaking skating routines. That's when my mind wandered back once again to my own skating days when I, too, tried to look romantic in my black velvet skating skirt which came well above my knees. However, it was hard to look enchanting with my knees knocking together from the cold.

Also, the dashing young men were dashing by too fast to see how romantic I looked, leaning against the side railing, desperately trying to look casual, when actually it was all I could do to remain upright, feet slipping this way and that.

My attention was brought back to the present by the sight of Vladimir Rostopovich, Little Lito the clown, vacuuming up the spot light with a little vacuum cleaner, because every time he tried to take a bow, the spot light would move away capriciously.

The Sesame Street characters were a big part of the Ice Follies. The Cookie Monster climbed out of the rink and went around scaring babies in the audience. He left several in hysterics, probably scarred for life.

Much attention was paid the audience. A white haired lady received a bouquet of roses, styrofoam snow-balls were thrown into the crowd, and at one point, little children from the audience were given sleigh-rides around the ice. A little girl who sat in front of me was in line but decided to leave her snowball with her mama. When she got back in line, the sleigh was full, and she came back to her seat crying. Another child's life ruined.

But, ironically, the little kid who got the last seat started bawling because she was afraid of the sleigh-ride. Another one for infant psychiatry.

When they weren't damaging little psyches, the skaters were carrying on with arduous routines of precision dancing, while lightshow effects beamed around the hall. The ease of the skaters made it appear that skating is second nature to these talented artists.

And their hair never gets messed up, even when they skate upside down. That's funny. My hair always got messed up when I skated upside down.

We left the auditorium and got on BART with the smell of popcorn and hotdogs still in our nostrils, and a dream of ice-crystal creatures come to life in our heads. It all began to blur and run together, and melt into my memories of my former skating days, the color, the spotlight shining golden around me. There I was, ostrich feathers in my hair, rhinestones on my bodice, skimming across the ice, the applause ringing in my ears, my black velvet skating skirt swirling around me, my blue knees knocking together, my ankles turned over sideways...the glamour, the excitement...the cold, the wet...

ESP, reincarnation — aides in group's personal growth

Edgar Cayce study groups are forming in the area for those interested in personal growth through group study of Cayce readings, explained Bea Jones.

"The groups offer a contemporary and mature view of the reality of extrasensory perception, the importance of dreams, the logic of reincarnation and the practical use of prayer and meditation," explained Mrs. Jones who has been involved in Cayce study for six years.

Cayce, referred to as the "sleeping prophet," was a product of the Kentucky Bible belt in the early 1900's who found that he could diagnose ailments and prescribe remedies for patients whose cases had baffled orthodox doctors.

Accounts have it that though Cayce had no medical training, when put into a hypnotic trance he was able to pinpoint problems in persons unknown to him and often hundreds of miles away.

Mrs. Jones said that though Cayce was able to use his psychic and clairvoyant powers, the groups in no way practice psychic phenomena. The study groups, she explained, are primarily meditation oriented.

Cayce insisted that his gift came from God and that he must not gain personal advantage from it, but once in the trance, he would answer questions that he was not aware of even after he awoke.

Mrs. Jones explained that "quacks" got a hold of him to ask results of horse races and the stock market. She said though he did not know what he had said, after he'd given the information he would awake with "blinding headaches."

Later, Mrs. Jones said, Cayce would not permit himself to be questioned by anyone but his wife, and devoted himself solely to philosophic and "life readings." The "life readings" dealt with a person's past lives to help him better cope with the current one, said Mrs. Jones.

She said that the idea of reincarnation "becomes logical over a long period of time. It's a balancing out."

As an example, she suggested that if a woman was having a difficult time getting pregnant, it might be because in preceding lives she was not a good mother.

"If you really believe in reincarnation you're going to take care of the earth and its institutions," she explained, because you'll be back.

In 1932, the Association for Research and Enlightenment, a psychical research society was formed to preserve and study the material based on thousands of Cayce readings. Currently there are over 2000 such groups, similar to the ones now forming here.

Mrs. Jones said the groups use selected readings compiled in the book, "A Search for God," as the guide.

Each chapter of the thin two-volume book deals with an aspect of self-enlightenment — "What is my ideal," "Love," "Knowledge" and "Happiness" are some of the chapter headings.

Mrs. Jones said the groups are very informal, no fees are requested and anyone of any denomination is invited to join.

She pointed out that the move toward self-improvement and spiritual growth are becoming quite popular, with methods like TM and EST coming into the forefront. Cayce study groups were one of the first, she said. "It is a very safe, tried and true method."

For those interested in finding out more about an Edgar Cayce study group, there will be an inquirers meeting tonight in Pleasanton. For more information contact Mrs. Jones at 846-4324.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: What do you think about a woman who isn't satisfied until she's slept with every man on the block? Unfortunately, this woman lives on my block and she causes constant trouble. She doesn't love any of the men but she ends up wrecking, or at least making trouble in, a lot of marriages. She has a husband of her own and it's been rumored that he's homosexual, but since she has three children who look like him and she swears they're all his, I doubt this. — W.O.B.

DEAR W.O.B.: The woman obviously is using her sex to try to prove something to herself and to add to her self-esteem. She may be insecure and uncertain of her sexual role. She may be worried, and afraid, consciously or unconsciously, that she may be homosexual. This type of woman engages in meaningless, promiscuous affairs with men to try to convince herself, and others, that she is attractive, passionate, desirable and above all, heterosexual. The woman you describe is probably extremely unhappy and sounds as if she needs help badly. I'd guess that she also needs reassurance from her husband. Something is definitely wrong with her marriage or she wouldn't be driven to behave as she does.

Her husband may, or may not, be homosexual but he's not making her feel attractive, needed and wanted. What she's saying to him is — "All these other men want me and find me sexually attractive, why don't you?"

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My cousin is convinced he's going to hit it big and be a millionaire. He's 40 and really infantile about the value of money. This might not be bad but his wife and three children depend on him for support. He gambles away everything he makes and never admits defeat. No matter how much he loses he can't resist another try on almost anything. If he doesn't change and grow up soon, I think his wife will leave him. Is there anything I could do? I like the guy, but don't understand him. — A.D.

DEAR A.D.: This get-rich-quick type has never gotten beyond the kind of magical thinking, common in children, that makes them believe whatever they wish, will come true. He is insecure, anxious and never satisfied. He can never win psychologically until a basic insecurity, that can usually be traced back to early childhood, is resolved.

The compulsive gambler, and I believe that's what your cousin is, can't resist the excitement of the unknown even though it's going to cost him his wife, his family, and perhaps his life.

It's usually quite hopeless to try to reason with the addicted gambler because the compulsion is so strong that he's no longer in control. Gamblers Anonymous is probably his best chance for success in kicking this destructive habit.

SIDE GLANCES

by Gill Fox

"I'm worried about the patient in 336. He shows symptoms of not being able to pay!"

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 31 years old and I have esophagitis. I have had an esophagoscopic examination and my doctor told me the lining of my esophagus is inflamed. He told me to go on a bland diet, no tea or coffee. I don't drink or smoke.

I take antacids all day long. I still have pain below my breastbone and burning most of the time. This has been going on for about the last year. I take diet pills to keep me from getting so hungry. I haven't lost my appetite. And if I don't take the diet pill I end up eating more and then I am even sicker. I'm 5 feet 2. Nine months ago I weighed 136 pounds. I weigh 116 now. I look better now than I have in years but I don't feel better. Is there anything else I can do to get over this? If not, how long can the esophagus take this before it turns into something else?

DEAR READER — Why are you so obsessed with losing weight? While you have an inflamed esophagus is not a good time to do that.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia and Esophageal Reflux. I doubt you have a hiatal hernia but you may have a leak of your stomach contents in to your lower esophagus anyway. That is how the acid contents get into the esophagus to irritate it and cause the inflammation. Try to follow the principles outlined in that letter and it may help relieve your symptoms. You are hurting your esophagus with those diet pills. Most of those that suppress your appetite contain drugs that have an action similar to the caffeine in coffee. So you are defeating your doctor's advice to not drink coffee by taking these pills. I suggest you stop them at once.

East a sensible bland diet for a while and start a daily exercise program such as a daily walk. Do exercises that you can do standing up so you won't increase any reflux of material from your stomach into your lower esophagus.

If you follow your doctor's advice and stay away from those diet pills, eat sensibly and exercise you should get over this pretty soon. It is important for people who have a reflux of acid digestive material into the lower esophagus to correct the situation if possible by diet and living habits. The prolonged irritation of the lower esophagus can lead to scarring and constriction of the lower esophagus. That makes it hard to pass food into the stomach and leads to other problems.

Quit concentrating on losing weight and start taking better care of your esophagus.

The esophagus does not have any protective coating to protect it from the action of acid digestive juices from the stomach. Repeated exposure of the lower esophagus to acid digestive juices not only causes burning in the pit of the stomach but can cause an ulcer of the lower esophagus.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS DRY ICE MADE FROM?"

A. DRY ICE IS THE POPULAR NAME FOR FROZEN CARBON DIOXIDE. SO-CALLED BECAUSE IT DOESN'T MELT INTO A LIQUID BUT TURNS TO A GAS AS IT THAWS.

You may be familiar with dry ice as the small, frosty pellets that the ice cream vendor uses to keep his ice cream frozen.

Dry ice is a frozen form of a gas called carbon dioxide, the same gas that produces the bubbles in a soft drink.

Dry ice is really dry. It doesn't melt and become a liquid, like ice that is made from water. Instead, dry ice changes back into a gas as it thaws.

To make dry ice, carbon dioxide gas is compressed to a liquid and cooled.

When this cold liquid is allowed to expand rapidly from the high pressure to normal atmospheric pressure it forms into white flakes of carbon dioxide snow. This snow is pressed into blocks of solid dry ice.

Dry ice is much colder than ordinary ice. It is dangerous to handle with your bare hands because it will cause a frostbite, which will feel like a burn.

Dry ice is used to pack frozen foods and ice cream for shipping long distances.

At the same time you must plan your play to guard against such things as a 4-1 break which you will be faced with 28 per cent of the time and even to worry about the 5-0 break which you run into the remaining 4 per cent.

With four trumps opposite four you can plan to ruff in either hand, but should be careful about ruffing in both hands in case trumps are divided 4-1.

The 4-1 trump break doesn't bother South if he follows this principle. The defense starts with three rounds of hearts. He ruffs the third, cashes his ace of trumps since he can afford one trump lead and plays his king of clubs.

East takes his ace and leads a fourth heart. South ruffs this with his queen of trumps, leads his last trump to dummy to pick up East's remaining trumps and claims the rest of the tricks.

Flat Alameda 'Stars fall to Contra Costa

Vance Rushing carries the ball for Alameda in the Alameda-Contra Costa All-Star Game Saturday. Alameda lost, 28-14.

ANTIOCH — Football and summer just don't go together for players on the Alameda County All-Star pigskin squad.

After losing Saturday night's game to Contra Costa's All-Stars 28-14, the young graduates tried to pull themselves together for the upcoming fall seasons at their respective colleges.

"Even though I worked out all summer, it wasn't the same thing as practicing for fall," commented former Granada High linebacker Larry Burke.

Times SPORTS

Dave Weber, Editor

who played most of the game for Alameda from his middle linebacker position.

Even Larry, commonly known as "The Animal" during his Granada days, admitted, "I just didn't have that 'zap' I usually have."

The Alameda stars, certainly equal to Contra Costa in talent but lacking a little on energy, fell behind 21-7 after the first half and never really climbed back in.

For a moment, though, Alameda looked like the team that was going to win. After Contra Costa took a quick 6-0 lead on a three-yard scoring toss from Campolindo quarterback Harley Miller to Mt. Diablo's Willie Glasper, Alameda kept its poise and drove down the field for a tying touchdown on a two-yard run by Piedmont's Jeff Haile with 3:35 to go in the quarter.

Granada's Vance Rushing, who ran for 74 yards on 17 carries to lead all rushers, kicked the extra point to give them a 7-6 lead.

After CC fumbled the ball back, Alameda drove down into CC territory through the running game and appeared to have control of the game.

Then they started passing. And passing. Until no downs were left.

"I thought we had the game pretty well controlled at that point," explained Rushing, the former Granada back. "We could've run a little more. I think we should have stuck to the ground. But they're calling the plays, they're the coaches."

"Our two quarterbacks (Washington's Mike Ricupito and JFK-Fremont's Brian Road) are better than they showed. The pair combined to complete just nine of 22 passes for 66 yards, while the ground game gained 177."

CC scored twice in the second quarter after gaining momentum against the Alameda defense, once on a pass from Miller to Campolindo teammate James Roux of 31 yards and again on a five-yard jaunt by College Park's Dane Lance to take the 21-7 lead.

Miller and Roux connected on another scoring play of 19 yards for the fourth CC touchdown, while Alameda salvaged a score late in the third quarter on a two-yard run by Jeff Haile to keep its faint hopes alive.

The pass wasn't working," echoed Dublin's Bob Klein, who played offensive tackle on almost every series. "If we would have stayed inside the tackles, we could've run all night. Some coaches like to run, some like to pass. He's just a passing coach."

Although head coach Bob Springer of Washington and Sunset's Carroll France may have been too adamant to use the pass, it did make for a more enjoyable game for the fans, which is the main reason the game is put on in the first place.

The United Cerebral Palsy and Kiwanis Club benefited well from the contest, which drew 7000 fans, and will use the proceeds to help the UCP cause.

Foothill's Mike Colvin and Tim Palmer of Livermore were used sparingly in the contest, each trying out foreign positions, which didn't help their standing with the regulars any.

Colvin played at cornerback, though he's used to playing linebacker. "It's not my position," he said. "Outside linebacker is."

Ironically, the first TD scored by CC was to Colvin's man, although the Foothill grad was on the bench at the time after playing the previous series and batting down a pass. "I don't know if I could have defended the (TD) pass better," he said honestly.

49ers relish defeat of Rams

The San Francisco 49ers had a couple of things to be thankful for late Sunday afternoon.

They had officially ended the tedious duties of training camp for 1977 and they had broken into the victory column for the first time in pre-season play this summer by rallying in the second half to beat arch-rival Los Angeles, 23-14.

This win over LA was especially satisfying to new 49er head mentor Ken Meyer, who served as offensive coordinator for the Rams the past four seasons.

It was his initial triumph as an NFL head coach and his immediate reaction was, "It's a Super feeling. I even got the game ball."

The Niners, who had lost to Seattle, 34-24, and San Diego, 32-13, in earlier games, fell behind the hated Rams, 14-0, in the first half with SF running back Wilbur Jackson setting up both LA TDs via costly fumbles.

But Jim Plunkett, the former Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, succeeded in directing his team to a comeback win. He played all the way except for the final two running situations of the contest when Pat Sullivan took over.

Meyer emphasized, "We're a competitive football team. Everybody contributed to our success today. And you can't turn the ball over and expect to win."

Meyer's reference was to 49er problems in this area in the two setbacks of the season and the first half of Sunday's game at Candlestick.

He admitted, "Yes, Tom Wittum's 50-yard field goal early in the third period, certainly seemed to get us on the right track. But our offensive and defensive lines began to get the job done in the second half and Plunkett threw the ball beautifully."

Jim was 8 for 14 for 102 yards and two TDs. His 48-yard TD throw to Kenny Harrison, the second-year wide receiver from Southern Methodist was a thing of beauty. That one with 12:45 to go sealed the Rams' defeat Sunday.

Plunkett had put the Niners in command with 52 seconds to go in the third period when he rolled to his left and scored from the five.

Jim suggested, "I believe our desire to win turned the game around. We needed one at this point. We've still got a long way to go before the regular season, but we'll be ready. We're putting in new plays each week."

Asked if the Niners had the rollout play by the quarterback in their offensive plan last season under Monte Clark, Jim replied, "Sure, but we didn't use it. We tried it twice today and it worked."

First time Plunkett rolled out Sunday was late in the second quarter, but he wound up pitching a TD pass to tight end Jim O'Bradovich for the final yard instead of running the ball in."

Del Williams ran for 58 yards in 13 carries and Jackson 15 for 58. Wilbur fumbled once at his own 35 and another time at his own 38. Pat Haden, the ex-USC man threw a 17-yard TD strike to Willie Miller to capitalize on the first Jackson miscue. Then Vince Ferragamo, the former Cal and Nebraska qb, hit Harold Jackson with a Los Angeles-scoring pass of 11 yards.

Cubs defeated in finale, 4-3

The Tri-Valley Cubs dropped their California Baseball Association finale to the I.O.F. squad of San Francisco, 4-3, Sunday at the Dublin Sports Grounds.

The Cubs, who complete their CBA season with a 10-4 mark and an overall mark of 18-20-1, will not compete in a Labor Day tournament as previously planned because of financial problems concerning the game.

The Cubs trailed 4-1 entering the ninth against the second-place CBA team, but rallied to load the bases after scoring two runs to make it close.

Jim McCuag, John McGue, and Carl Speck all singled, while Jim Slorenc singled to drive in a run and Dave Krikorian walked in another. Scott Ellis then struck out for the second out.

With Bob Stoddard up at bat, Speck tried to score from third on a passed ball but was thrown out. John Prieto struck out 13 in a losing cause.

U.S. BB team crushes USSR

SOFIA, Bulgaria — The U.S. college basketball team swamped the Russians 129-95 in the World University Games Monday night after wild crowd scenes outside Sofia's Universiade Hall.

Thousands tried to stampede their way in, although the hall already was full.

Police struggled with the disappointed fans and finally pushed them away from the doors. But newsmen were denied entry for 30 minutes while the trouble lasted.

Darrell Griffith of Louisville scored 25 points and led the Americans to a victory that could decide the gold medal. The United States, Soviet Union, Cuba and Brazil — rated by many the four strongest teams in the tournament — are in the same semifinals group, and only one of them can go into the final.

The Americans led 6-0 in the first minute and 64-46 at halftime.

It was a successful night all around for the United States. At the track and field stadium Clancy Edwards, sprinting into the teeth of a wind, edged Cuba's Silvio Leonard by 14 hundredths of a second to win the 200 meters gold medal. — by Associated Press

Reuschel gains 17th victory, Giants lose squeaker, 3-2

CHICAGO — Bobby Murcer's home run and rousing doubles by Bill Buckner and George Mitterwald enabled Rick Reuschel to post his 17th victory Monday as he hurled the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The decision was the eighth by the Cubs over the Giants in as many meetings this season.

Ivan DeJesus opened the Cub first with a double and scored on a double by Buckner. Dave Rosello tripled to open the second and scored on a double by Mitterwald. Murcer hit his 24th homer in the eighth inning.

Reuschel, who has lost only five, was not especially sharp and didn't have a 1-2-3 inning until the eighth. The Giants got to him for a run in the sixth on a single by Rob Andrews, a walk and a two-out single by Terry Whitfield. San Francisco added another run in the ninth when Derral Thomas struck out but reached on a wild pitch, went to third on a double by Bill Madlock and scored on an infield out. Willie Hernandez came on to get the final out.

Jim Barr, 11-11, was the loser. Reuschel's victory boosted his 1977 record at Wrigley Field to 12-1.

The Cubs battered Barr for seven hits including a triple and four doubles in the four innings he pitched but scored only two runs. After Buckner doubled scoring DeJesus in the first, Jerry Morales walked but Murcer and Steve Ontiveros both flied out.

Greg Gross singled opening the third, but Buckner hit into a double play. Ontiveros doubled with one out in the fourth, and one out later, Mitterwald beat out an infield single but Reuschel grounded out.

Bill Madlock singled in the Giants' first, but Darrell Evans hit into an inning-ending double play. Madlock also singled in the third but was caught stealing. With two out in the fourth, McCovey singled and Gary Thomasson walked, but Terry Whitfield fanned.

Tim Foli singled in the fifth and pinch batter Jack Clark walked, but Madlock ended the inning by bouncing into a double play.

The Giants loaded the bases in the seventh on singles by Marc Hill and Madlock and a walk to Evans, but McCovey, the all-time NL leader in grand slams with 19, flied out, ending the inning.

Warriors sign top picks

OAKLAND — The Golden State Warriors announced Monday they have signed their No. 1 and No. 2 picks in the National Basketball Association draft, guard Rickey Green from the University of Michigan and forward Wesley Cox from the University of Louisville.

Green, who was the 16th player picked in first round of the NBA draft, told a news conference Monday he had expected to be chosen sooner.

"I intend to show a lot of people my worth," said the 6-foot-2, 170-pounder who led Michigan to the NCAA finals in his junior year. Green, who played two years at Vincennes Junior College before joining the Wolverines, was the top scorer on the runnerup Michigan team in his junior year.

Oakland tops Blue Jays

OAKLAND — Willie Crawford's pinch-hit three-run homer snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning and led the Oakland A's to a 5-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Monday night.

Crawford's homer, his first of the season, capped a four-run rally off Toronto starter Dave Lemanczyk, 10-11, who had a three-hitter going into the seventh inning.

With two out, Wayne Gross singled to start the rally and was replaced by pinch-runner Sheldon Mallory, who stole second. Jim Tyrone then doubled to score Mallory with the tying run.

Designated-hitter Tim

Hosley drew a walk and Crawford then followed with a line drive homer over the right field fence.

Winning pitcher Doc Medich, 6-6, went the first seven innings and gave up six hits.

Toronto scored its first run in the third inning and then went ahead 2-1 in the fifth on a single Al Woods, a stolen base, a long fly to center field and a sacrifice fly by Doug Rader.

Medich walked Rader to lead off the eighth inning and was replaced by Bob Lacey, who got pinch-hitter Doug Ault to hit into a double play. Lacey then retired the Blue Jays in the ninth to record his seventh save of the season.

People's voice heard on tax rate

MARTINEZ — The opinions of thousands of Contra Costa County residents on next year's proposed county budget will be weighed by county supervisors.

Last Thursday, 400 persons attended two public hearings on the 1977-78 county and special district budgets plus use of federal revenue sharing funds. Seventy-seven stepped up to the speaker's microphone to urge the board either to cut the proposed $252.8 million budget or to maintain special services. Another 2,000 cards and letters from concerned citizens pressed mainly for taxpayers' relief, according to Arthur G. Will, county administrator.

Geno Banducci of Orinda told the board, "I hope you each get the message — we want a tax cut."

Jim Cawdrey and Dick Radford of the Contra Costa Taxpayers Association said they were not satisfied with the board's intention to keep property tax collections to no more than a seven - and - one - half per cent "cost of living" increase. "Taxpayers need a more substantial tax cut and they need it now," Cawdrey stated.

Numerous speakers pleaded with the board to maintain programs which were allowing them to build their

Supervisors tangle with budget

Leshner News Bureau

MARTINEZ — Can the 1977-78 Contra Costa County budget be trimmed while maintaining and even increasing the special services provided by the county? That is the question the Board of Supervisors will grapple with when it meets Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in chambers.

Members of the Contra Costa Taxpayers Association indicated they were not satisfied with the board's intention to tie property tax collections to a seven and one half percent "cost of living" increase and instead wanted a tax cut. They backed their testimony with more than 2000 signatures.

Lincoln Grayson explained taxpayers are not asking that all programs be cut but that the board set priorities and "give out only what is available."

On the other side of the issue, numerous speakers pleaded with the supervisors to maintain or expand the social and health services now available to county residents.

Spokespersons for the Center for Human Development said it would be a waste of money to cut off outreach programs that prevent people from turning to drugs and crime.

As an example, Robert Herrera noted the low cost of the county's methadone maintenance program as compared to the loss of property and law enforcement and court costs when drug addicts turn to crime to support their habits.

The board has until Aug. 30 to adopt the final budget.

Phillips to the rostrum to dramatize the need for continuation of emergency medical services. Phillips claimed such services are "one of the least expensive systems of its kind in the country."

Jeanne Gibbs, director of the Center for Human Development, said that it would be a waste of money to cut off outreach programs that prevented people from turning to drugs or crime. Robert Herrera of Richmond pointed to the low cost of methadone maintenance as compared with the cost of thefts and jailing when drug addicts must feed their habits.

"The cost of dropping such programs would be far more than continuing them," asserted Jeffrey Wilson of the Discovery House program.

New programs advocated by other speakers included a teen crisis center, a family crisis center, a county human services directory, a community service center for Crockett and a program to rid county fields of artichoke thistles.

Under law, the board must adopt the budget by Aug. 30. By Sept. 1 it will set actual tax rates and levy taxes.

Brothers from Amador return with ROTC honors

PLEASANTON — Art and Doug Brannan of 5298 Blackbird Way will return to their respective universities with not only full academic scholarships but as the top Army ROTC cadets in their classes.

Art, Jr., will be a junior at the University of Notre Dame this fall while Doug, also a graduate of Amador Valley High School, will be a sophomore at Tulane University in New Orleans.

Doug made the Dean's List at Tulane with a 3.5 grade point average while Art achieved a 3.2 average at the South Bend, Ind., school.

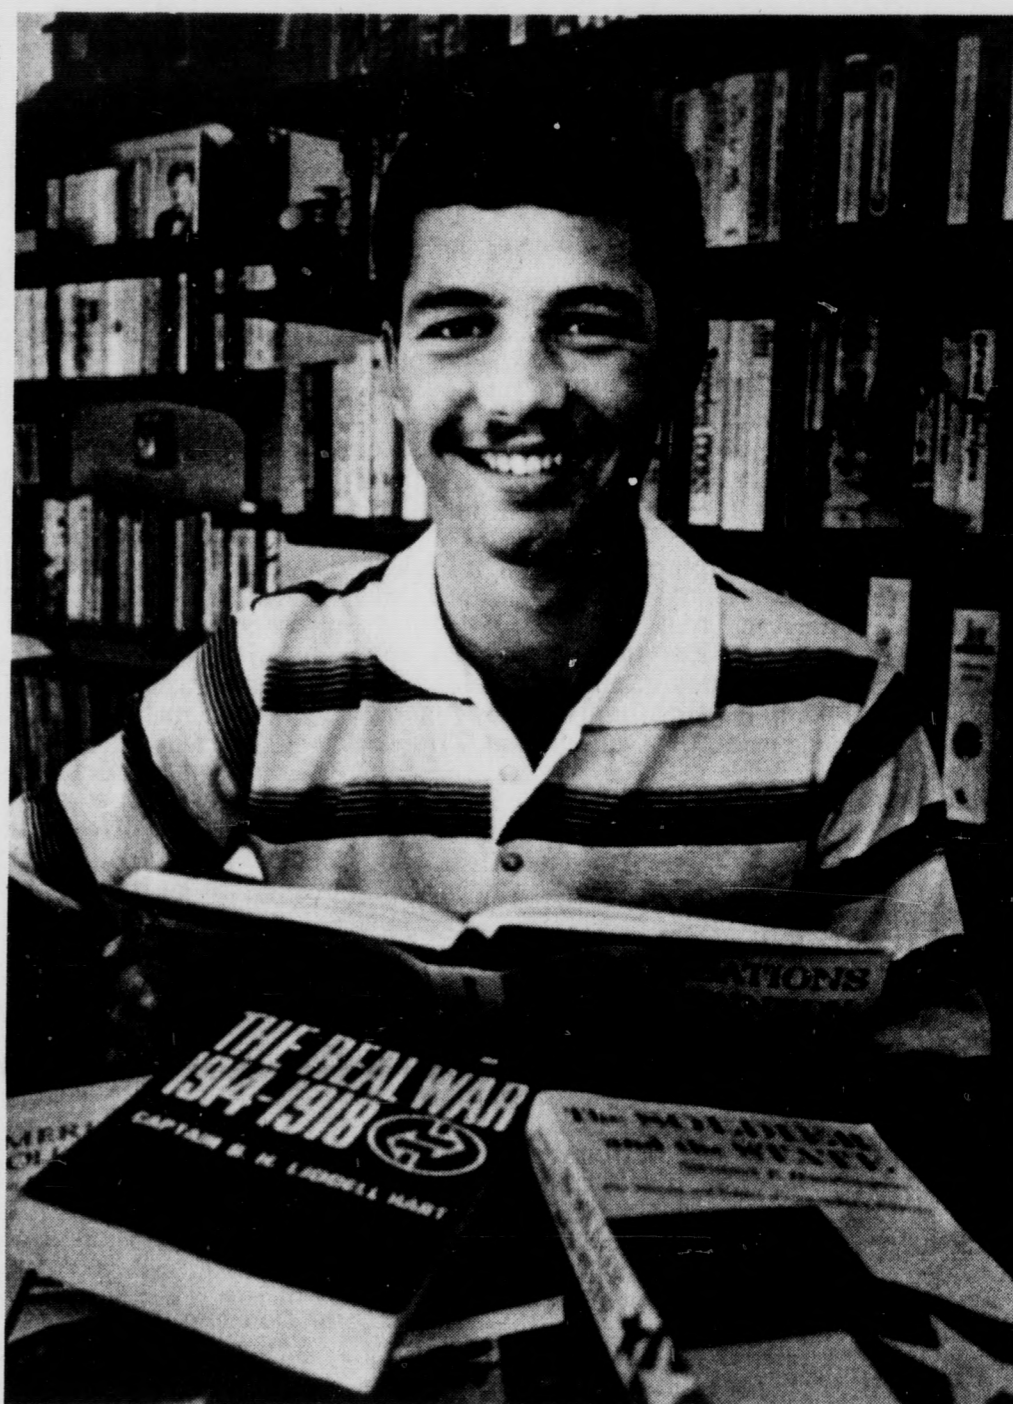

In addition to being a member of the varsity wrestling team, competing in the 142-pound class, Art was named "Superior Cadet" as a sophomore and participated in student government.

Doug not only attained the accolade of "Superior Cadet" in his class but received the Commandant's Recommendation of Excellence as a freshman. The latter notation is emblematic of being the top ROTC cadet on campus.

Both will have full academic scholarships for the balance of their college careers.

Art is a biology major who hopes to go on to med school after Notre Dame while Doug is a history major. Doug has his sights set on entering Tulane's five-year MBA program.

Both young men are the sons of the Art Brannans.

Officers replaced in SRV

DANVILLE — Two new sheriff's department officers will begin their investigative rounds next month in the San Ramon Valley, replacing two others who have completed their two-year tours of duty.

Announcement of the two officers was made Thursday at a meeting of the advisory committee for police district P-2.

The two men, Sgts. Paul Harrod and Dennis Cusack, are 15 and 16-year veterans respectively of the Contra Costa County Sheriff's Department. Cusack, in addition to his investigative duties, will also give talks on law enforcement to school children in grades kindergarten through eight.

There was discussion Thursday about filling these positions in the future with patrolmen rather than sergeants.

Sheriff's department liaison Lt. H.E. Van Orden said it is becoming increasingly more difficult to find sergeants willing to accept the P-2 positions and that patrolmen could handle the duties just as effectively.

He also pointed out that allowing patrol officers on this beat would open the position to women.

Lions special

Dublin-San Ramon Lions Ron Catala, left, Gerald Abernathy, Tom Driver and Lee North are ready to light the fire for the eleventh annual Dublin-San Ramon Lions Club Barbecue. The event will take place at the Pleasanton Fairgrounds Aug. 27. Happy Hour begins at 5 p.m. and goes on to Good Eats from 6 to 9 p.m. Fantastic prizes can be won at continuous Bingo games during the festivities. Adult tickets cost $5; children, $2.50. Proceeds will go to benefit the Blind, Sight Conservation and Community Programs.

Small hike seen for teachers

DANVILLE — San Ramon Valley teachers may be able to squeeze a small pay raise from the school district, but definitely not the eight per cent hike they're requesting, the district superintendent says.

"We're not against higher salaries," said San Ramon Valley schools Supt. Allan J. Petersdorf, adding that the district may be able to offer the teachers a small raise after the state school finance bills are approved.

But, he emphasized, "no way will we get to eight per cent."

Teachers can't 'double-dip'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation aimed at ending "double dipping" by retired teachers and school administrators has been signed into law by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., his office said today.

Assemblywoman Carol Hallett, R-Atascadero, authored AB 1002, which tightens a state law that bans such persons from receiving over $5,000 a year in school district consulting fees.

While that ban is on the books, at least 35 people in the state have been breaking it and earning more than $5,000 a year in consulting fees on top of their retirement benefits, state officials say.

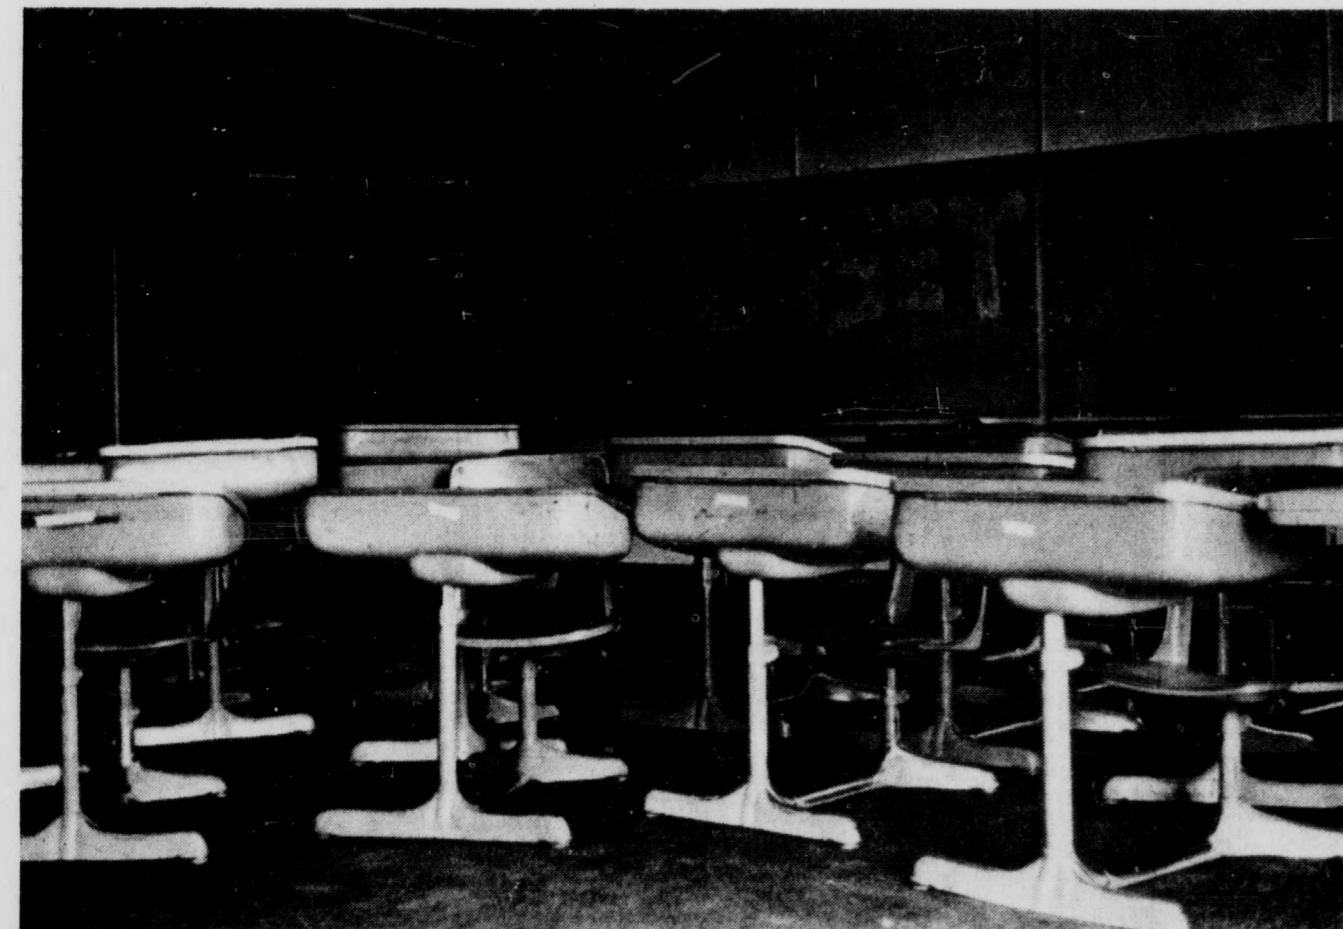

During hearings on the bill, Mrs. Hallett would cite, without naming her, the case of Marjorie Tobias, a retired administrator from Daly City's Jefferson Elementary School District.

State records show she draws $20,094.72 in retirement funds a year, and newspaper accounts say she received $19,450 in education consultant fees in the last two years from the Jefferson district.

School signups for tots

Kindergarten registration for children unable to sign up with the Pleasanton Joint School District last spring will be held at the district's five kindergartens Tuesday, Aug. 30 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Parents are asked to not wait until the first day of school and are reminded eligible children must have Dec. 2, 1972 their fifth birthday on or before and must be immunized against DPT, Rubella and Polio. Immunization against mumps and rubella is also encouraged.

Waiting the rush

Empty desks at the Livermore Valley Joint Unified School District's newest school, Sunset II, 1671 Frankfurt Way, will be filled soon when the school opens its doors for the first time for 400 students Sept. 7. Parents and students can get their first look at the new facility at an open house scheduled for this Saturday, Aug. 27, from noon to 4 p.m. The open house is presented by the schools parent - teacher organization and principal Les Imel. For more information contact Imel at Arroyo Mocho school or Mrs. Joanne Smith, 455-1493 or Mrs. Gayl Tschritter, 447-7257.

Debate over winter pool closing

PLEASANTON — Debate over winter use of the city's Aquatic Center highlights Wednesday night's Park and Recreation Commission meeting.

Commissioners meet at 8 p.m. in city council chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

The city is considering closing the pool to save on drastic winter utility costs.

But commissioners have been waiting for response from the local AAU swim team, primary users of the pool during winter months.

No word has been received to date, according to department director Bob Caporusso.

The AAU team reportedly has been talking with Valley Community Services District over use of the California High School pool.

Commissioners also will consider naming the Morrison Homes' Heritage Valley park. A public hearing is being considered.

A bicycle trails report, monthly staff reports, and a copy of the Alameda County Fair Board's revised five-year construction program round out the agenda.

Drop-in tennis

PLEASANTON — A "drop-in" program at Tennis Faire, the city's tennis emporium at the Alameda County Fairgrounds, has been announced for Sundays in the month of September.

Starting this past Sunday, courts will be available between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m. for unlimited play. The fee is $3 per person.

Doubles will have preference over singles.

The new program is to acquaint people with the facility and to enable players to meet new partners.

It will be available on Sundays only.

Great America

PLEASANTON — The city's trip to Marriott's Great America in Santa Clara is slated to leave this Friday.

Travelers will leave the West Wind Youth Center at 5 p.m. and return to their homes by 11 p.m. The trip is sponsored by the city's park and recreation department.

For further information call 846-3202, ext. 215.

Aquatic shutdown

PLEASANTON — The city's Aquatic Center will close at 7 p.m. Aug. 23 for the Volunteer Aide Dinner.

The aquatic staff, city and Red Cross honor the volunteer Water Safety Aides for their service to the community.

Dave Caraveo, drum major at Livermore High School the last two years, marched with the Concord Blue Devils last weekend as they won their second straight Drum Corps International championship at Denver before 30,000 spectators. The Blue Devils captured the high drums, high horns and general effect awards at the championships Friday and Saturday nights.

Rise and fall of South in Congress

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Jimmy Carter, flashing his smile from the White House, fills Southern hearts with pride, organized Southern clout on Capitol Hill is probably at its feeblest in 40 years.

Ironically, Carter's election as the first post-Civil War president from the Deep South and the decline of Southern bloc power in the Congress are two aspects of the same historic evolution, the return of the South to the national political and social mainstream.

It was Southern isolation and defensiveness that built a once effective third force in a two party legislative branch.

As recently as five years ago, six of the 12 major committees in the House, seven of 11 in the Senate, were headed by Southerners.

But there currently is only one Southern chairman in the House, Texan George H. Mahon of the Appropriations panel, and he is retiring from Congress next year.

Next in line to head the purse strings committee is another Southerner, Jamie Whitten of Mississippi. But next in line no longer means automatic succession, and Whitten faces a fight.

The change is less dramatic in the Senate, but the trend is clear. Six of the key chairmanships still are held by Southerners. But only two of these men are under 70 and non-Southerners are waiting in the wings.

When the great civil rights battles of the 1960's were being fought, a cohesive opposing band of about 100

Southern Democratic representatives was led by generals like Howard Smith of Virginia. He commanded as chairman of the Rules Committee, incomparably more powerful and independent than it is now.

In the Senate, Richard B. Russell of Georgia led a force proportionately as strong.

The Southern Democratic strategists, skilled at trading votes and forming coalitions with Republicans, could not stop the march of civil rights legislation. But they succeeded in slowing it, to the frustration of Democratic presidents and even of the legendary Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Rayburn was the last southern Speaker, and one who came to see the need for legislation to foster social justice and better race relations. His confrontation with Smith and the resulting reconstitution of the Rules Committee was an early milestone on the road to the new House.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts has much clearer lines of authority and party discipline to help him preside over the Democratic majority. Rayburn operated with personality, prestige and persuasion.

Revitalization of the Democratic caucus and steering committee, subjecting chairmanships to caucus vote — which led in 1975 to the ouster of three Southern chairmen — and conversion of the Rules Committee into an arm of the Democratic leadership are among the changes whose effects are still developing.

But there are more profound forces shaping Congress in the 1970s and their Southern contingents, deep-seated changes in attitude in the country as well as among those who are elected to legislative seats.

Many Southerners in Congress still share a conservative bent, especially in fiscal matters, a commitment to a strong military and a suspicion of foreign policy accommodations.

But there is no overriding passionate issue to weld them together. Southerners can argue persuasively that their region has made its adjustments and that the issue of race relations is much more divisive in cities such as Detroit and Boston than below the Mason-Dixon line.

Carter drew applause from a sweltering audience in Yazoo City, Miss., July 21, when he said:

"In the South we were guilty for many years of the deprivation of human rights to a large portion of our citizens. ...

"I think it was with a great deal of courage that the South was able to face up to that change. I personally believe it was the best thing that ever happened to the South in my lifetime. ...

"Now we white people and the black people who live near us can work together on common problems and share trials and difficulties and seek common solutions. I think it's strengthened the South.

"I would not be here as President had it not been for the Civil Rights Act and for the courage of some leaders — and I don't claim to be one of them — who changed those bad aspects of the South to the present greatness of the South."

The attitudes Carter described are reflected in present-day elections. There are many moderates and some liberals of both races in the current Southern delegations. It would be unthinkable today that only a few could feel free to refuse signing something like the Southern Manifesto of the 60s, which vowed opposition to civil rights legislation.

On other issues Southerners divide much as do representatives of other sections.

Moreover, Democrats no longer count the Southern delegations as their exclusive preserve. The 11 one-time Confederate states sent 27 Republican representatives, five Republican senators and one independent to the current Congress.

Southern conservatives may be able to change their party affiliation without ideological pain. But if they are elected as Republicans they forfeit their hopes for committee chairmanships and majority leadership posts so long as the Democrats continue to control Congress.

It was by electing Democrats, persistently re-electing incumbents and so pushing them up the once inevitable seniority ladder that the South built up its past formidable institutional influence in Congress.

But Southern political savvy is far from dead and individuals from the region may well find greater opportunities open to them with the demise of bloc politics.

There is no better example than Jimmy Carter.

Sunol school lunch up a dime

SUNOL — Trustees of Sunol Glen School Friday acted to increase the price of lunches 10 cents and find a replacement for Grant Gladman, a science teacher who resigned earlier this summer.

The price of student lunches would go from 40 to 50 cents.

Only other action at the special meeting was approving of warrants.

Terrorist Targets
Twice during the coming week, hometown American terrorists are likely to attack some U.S. business or government target. For these terrorists, the bomb is a favorite weapon and was used 104 times in this country last year, according to a Conference Board analysis. About 65 per cent of these bombings were directed against business.

Woman cuts deputy

Leshar News Bureau
DANVILLE — A sheriff's deputy was sliced on the back of his hand this morning when he attempted to arrest a Danville woman after a brief chase.

Deputy Ed Raiter, 32, was treated for the wound and returned to duty, his superiors reported.

Raiter reported he was attacked by Gale Sharon

Williams, 30, of 275 St. Christopher Drive after he went there in response to a call about a distraught person.

Raiter and Deputy Joseph Kain arrived and saw Williams sitting in her car. Raiter went over to the car, opened the door and started to ask Williams to step out when he saw she had a knife, Raiter said.

He said he grabbed for Williams' wrist and she cut his hand and then drove off in her car. The deputies pursued her north on El Capitan Drive where her car spun out and stopped.

Williams was later taken to county hospital for psychiatric observation and was arrested for investigation of assault on a police officer.
